Whitehall, November 6, 1781.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL Conway, who ſailed from New York, the 1ſt of laſt Month, in the Duke of Cumberland Packet, arrived at this Office on the Evening of the 3d Inſtant, with Diſpatches from Sir Henry Clinton to the Right Honourable Lord George Germain, One of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, of which the following are Extracts.

Extract of a Letter from Sir Henry Clinton to Lord George Germain, dated New York, September 7 1781.

IN my Diſpatch of the 20th of Auguſt, I had the Honor to inform your Lordſhip, that General Waſhington had ſuddenly quitted his Camp at White Plains; I have now That of communicating to you his ſubſequent Movements.

He paſſed the Croton on the 19th ultimo, taking a Station within a few Miles of it. On the 23d and 24th he croſſed the North River, and, by the Poſition he took, ſeemed to threaten Staten Iſland until the 29th, when he ſuddenly moved towards the Delaware. At firſt I judged this to be a Feint; but finding that he paſſed that River with ſome of his Avant Guard, and publickly talked of the Count de Graſſe's being every Moment expected in the Cheſapeak to co-operate with him, I immediately endeavoured, both by Land and Water, to communicate my Suſpicions to Lord Cornwallis; at the ſame Time aſſuring his Lordſhip, that I would either reinforce him by every poſſible Means in my Power, or make the beſt Diverſion I could in his Favor.

As Rear-Admiral Graves ſailed from hence with his own and Sir Samuel Hood's Squadron the 31ſt ultimo, in conſequence of the Intelligence received reſpecting the Rhode Iſland Fleet, as mentioned to your Lordſhip in my laſt Diſpatch; and as Lord Cornwallis, in his Letters of the 31ſt ultimo and 2d inſtant, which I received on the 4th and Yeſterday, informs me, that the Count de Graſſe was in the Cheſapeak with a conſiderable Armament, I am in hourly Expectation of hearing that Rear-Admiral Graves has either intercepted Barras, or attacked the Fleet in the Bay, or perhaps both. In the mean Time I have embarked 4000 Troops, with which I ſhall inſtantly proceed myſelf to relieve Lord Cornwallis as ſoon as I know the Paſſage to him is open.

Extract of a Letter from Sir Henry Clinton to Lord George Germain, dated New York, September 12, 1781.

I HAVE the Honor to inform your Lordſhip, that the Expedition I had ſent againſt New London is returned, after having deſtroyed all the Shipping there (except about Sixteen, which made their Eſcape up the River) and an immenſe Quantity of Naval Stores, European Manufactures, and Eaſt and Weſt India Commodities. It gives me Concern, however, that in doing this important Service the Town was unavoidably burnt, occaſioned by the Exploſions of great Quantities of Gunpowder, which happened to be in the Storehouſes that were ſet Fire to. Brigadier-General Arnold's Report, with a Return of the Killed and Wounded, are incloſed for your Lordſhip's Information. And I have the Pleaſure to acquaint your Lordſhip, that the Brigadier ſpeaks to me with the higheſt Praiſe of the good Conduct, Diſcipline and Gallantry of all the Officers and Men who accompanied him on this Service. But as no Words, in my Opinion, can do them full Juſtice, I ſhall only obſerve, that the Aſſault of Fort Griſwold (which is repreſented to be a Work of very great Strength) and the carrying it by Coup de Main, notwithſtanding the very obſtinate Reſiſtance of the Garriſon, will undoubtedly impreſs the Enemy with every Apprehenſion from the Ardor of Britiſh Troops, and will be hereafter remembered with the greateſt Honor to the 40th and 54th Regiments, and their Leaders, to whoſe Share that Attack fell; though we at preſent cannot too much lament the heavy Loſs they ſuſtained in the many brave Officers and Men who fell in the Attempt: And I cannot doubt your Lordſhip will be happy to lay the Merit of their Exertions before the King, for His moſt gracious Approbation.

Copy of a Letter from Brigadier-General Arnold to Sir Henry Clinton, dated Sound, off Plumb Iſland, September 8, 1781.

SIR,

I HAVE the Honor to inform your Excellency, that the Tranſports, with the Detachment of Troops under my Orders, anchored on the Long Iſland Shore on the 5th Inſtant, at Two o'Clock P. M. about Ten Leagues from New London; and, having made ſome neceſſary Arrangements, weighed Anchor at Seven o'Clock P. M. and ſtood for New London with a fair Wind. At One o'Clock the next Morning we arrived off the Harbour, when the Wind ſuddenly ſhifted to the Northward, and it was Nine o'Clock before the Tranſports could beat in. At Ten o'Clock the Troops in Two Diviſions, and in Four Debarkations, were landed, one on each Side the Harbour, about Three Miles from New London; that on the Groton Side, conſiſting of the 40th and 54th Regiments, and the 3d Battalion of New Jerſey Volunteers, with a Detachment of Yagers and Artillery, were under the Command of Lieutenant-Colonel Eyre. The Diviſion on the New London Side conſiſted of the 38th Regiment, the Loyal Americans, the American Legion, Refugees, and a Detachment of 60 Yagers, who were immediately on their Landing put in Motion; and at Eleven o'Clock, being within half a Mile of Fort Trumbull, which commands New London Harbour, I detached Captain Millett, with Four Companies of the 38th Regiment, to attack the Fort, who was joined on his March by Captain Frink, with One Company of the American Legion. About this Time I advanced, with the Remainder of the Diviſion, Weſt of Fort Trumbull, on the Road to the Town, to attack a Redoubt, which had kept up a briſk Fire upon us for ſome Time, but which the Enemy evacuated upon our Approach. In this Work we found Six Pieces of Cannon mounted, and Two diſmounted: Soon after I had the Pleaſure to ſee Captain Millett march into Fort Trumbull, under a Shower of Grape Shot from a Number of Cannon which the Enemy had turned upon him; and I have the Pleaſure to inform your Excellency, that by the ſudden Attack, and determined Bravery of the Troops, the Fort was carried with the Loſs of only Four or Five Men killed and wounded.

[Price Seven-Pence.]

wounded. Captain Millett had Orders to leave One Company in Fort Trumbull, to detach One to the Redoubt we had taken, and to join me with the other Two Companies. No Time, on my Part, was loſt in gaining the Town of New London. We were oppoſed by a ſmall Body of the Enemy, with One Field Piece, who were ſo hard preſſed, that they were obliged to leave the Piece, which, being Iron, was ſpiked and left.

As ſoon as the Enemy were alarmed in the Morning, we could perceive they were buſily employed in bending Saiks, and endeavouring to get their Privateers and other Ships up Norwich River, out of our Reach; but the Wind being ſmall, and the Tide againſt them, they were obliged to anchor again. From Information I received, before and after my Landing, I had Reaſon to believe that Fort Griſwold, on Groton Side, was very incomplete; and I was aſſured, by Friends to Government, after my Landing, that there were only 20 or 30 Men in the Fort, the Inhabitants in general being on Board their Ships, and buſy in ſaving their Property. On taking Poſſeſſion of Fort Trumbull, I found the Enemy's Ships would eſcape unleſs we could poſſeſs ourſelves of Fort Griſwold: I therefore diſpatched an Officer to Lieutenant-Colonel Eyre, with the Intelligence I had received, and requeſted him to make an Attack upon the Fort as ſoon as poſſible, at which Time I expected the Howitzer was up, and would have been made Uſe of. On my gaining a Height of Ground in the Rear of New London, from which I had a good Proſpect of Fort Griſwold, I found it much more formidable than I expected, or than I had formed an Idea from the Information I had before received. I obſerved, at the ſame Time, that the Men who had eſcaped from Fort Trumbull had croſſed in Boats, and thrown themſelves into Fort Griſwold, and a favorable Wind ſpringing up at the ſame Time, the Enemy's Ships were eſcaping up the River, notwithſtanding the the Fire from Fort Trumbull, and a Six Pounder which I had with me. I immediately diſpatched a Boat with an Officer to Lieutenant-Colonel Eyre, to countermand my firſt Order to attack the Fort; but the Officer arrived a few Minutes too late.

Lieutenant Colonel Eyre had ſent Captain Beckwith with a Flag to demand a Surrender of the Fort which was peremptorily refuſed, and the Attack had commenced. After a moſt obſtinate Defence of near Forty Minutes the Fort was carried by the ſuperior Bravery and Perſeverance of the Aſſailants. The Attack was judicious and ſpirited, and reflects the higheſt Honor on the Officers and Troops engaged, who ſeemed to vie with each other in being firſt in Danger. The Troops approached on three Sides of the Work, which was a Square with Blanks, made a Lodgement in the Ditch, and under a heavy Fire, which they kept upon the Works, effected a ſecond Lodgment upon the Fraizing, which was attended with great Difficulty, as only a few Pickets could be forced out or broke in a Place, and was ſo high that the Soldiers could not aſcend without aſſiſting each other. Here the Coolneſs and Bravery of the Troops were very conſpicuous, as the Firſt who aſcended the Fraize were obliged to ſilence a Nine-pounder, which enfiladed the Place on which they ſtood, until a ſufficient Body had collected to enter the Work, which was done with fixed Bayonets through the Embrazures, where they were oppoſed with great Obſtinacy by the Garriſon with long Spears. On this Occaſion I have to regret the Loſs of Major Montgomery, who was killed by a Spear in entering the Enemy's Works; alſo of Enſign Whillock of the 40th Regiment, who was killed in the Attack. Three other Officers of the ſame Regiment were wounded: Lieutenant Colonel Eyre, and Three other Officers of the 54th Regiment were alſo wounded; but I have the Satisfaction to inform your Excellency, that they are all in a fair Way to recover.

Lieutenant Colonel Eyre, who behaved with great Gallantry, having received this Wound near the Works, and Major Montgomery being killed immediately after, the Command devolved on Major Bromfield, whoſe Behaviour on this Occaſion does him great Honor. Lieutenant Colonel Buſkirk, with the New-Jerſey Volunteers and Artillery, being the ſecond Debarkation, came up ſoon after the Work was carried, having been retarded by the Roughneſs of the Country; I am much obliged to this Gentleman for his Exertions, although the Artillery did not arrive in Time.

I have incloſed a Return of the Killed and Wounded, by which your Excellency will obſerve that our Loſs, though very conſiderable, is very ſhort of the Enemy's, who loſt moſt of their Officers, among whom was their Commander Colonel Ledyard. Eighty-five Men were found dead in Fort Griſwold, and Sixty wounded, moſt of them mortally; their Loſs on the oppoſite Side muſt have been conſiderable, but cannot be aſcertained. I believe we have about Seventy Priſoners, beſides the wounded, who were left paroled.

Ten or Twelve of the Enemy's Ships were burned, among them three or four armed Veſſels, and one loaded with Naval Stores; an immenſe Quantity of European and Weſt-India Goods were found in the Stores, among the former the Cargo of the Hannah, Captain Watſon, from London, lately captured by the Enemy; the Whole of which was burnt with the Stores, which proved to contain a large Quantity of Powder unknown to us. The Exploſion of the Powder and Change of Wind, ſoon after the Stores were fired, communicated the Flames to Part of the Town, which was, notwithſtanding every Effort to prevent it, unfortunately deſtroyed.

Upwards of Fifty Pieces of Iron Cannon were deſtroyed in the different Works, (excluſive of the Guns of the Ships) a particular Return of which I cannot do myſelf the Honor to tranſmit to your Excellency at this Time.

A very conſiderable Magazine of Powder, and Barracks to contain 300 Men, were found in Fort Griſwold, which Captain Lemoine of the Royal Artillery had my poſitive Directions to deſtroy; an Attempt was made by him, but unfortunately failed; he had my Orders to make a ſecond Attempt; the Reaſons why it was not done, Captain Lemoine will have the Honor to explain to your Excellency.

I ſhould be wanting in Juſtice to the Gentlemen of the Navy, did I omit to acknowledge, that upon this Expedition I have received every poſſible Aid from them. Captain Bazely has made every Exertion to aſſiſt our Operations, and not only gave up his Cabbin to the ſick and wounded Officers, but furniſhed them with every Aſſiſtance and Refreſhment that his Ship afforded.

Lord Dalrymple will have the Honour to deliver my Diſpatches. I beg Leave to refer your Excellency to his Lordſhip for the Particulars of our Operations on the New London Side; I feel myſelf under great Obligations to him for his Exertions upon the Occaſion.

Captain Beckwith, who was extremely ſerviceable to me, returns with his Lordſhip; his ſpirited Conduct in the Attack of Fort Griſwold does him great Honor, being one of the firſt Officers who entered the Works. I beg Leave to refer your Excellency to him for the Particulars of our Operations on that Side, and to ſay I have the higheſt Opinion of his Abilities as an Officer.

I am greatly indebted to Captain Stapleton, (who acted as Major of Brigade) for his ſpirited Conduct and Aſſiſtance; in particular on the Attack upon Fort Trumbull, and his Endeavours to prevent plundering, (when the public Stores were burnt) and the Deſtruction of private Buildings.

The Officers and Troops in general behaved with the greateſt Intrepidity and Firmneſs.

I have the Honor to be, &c.

On Board the Shuldham, September 8, 1781.

Extract of a Letter from Sir Henry Clinton to Lord George Germain, dated New York, September 26, 1781.

THE Day after I had cloſed my Diſpatch of the 12th of September, I received a Letter from the Admiral, dated the 9th Inſtant, to inform me, that the Enemy being abſolute Maſters of the Navigation of the Cheſapeak, there was little Probability of any Thing getting into York River but by Night, and an infinite Riſk to any Supplies ſent by Water; at the ſame Time acquainting me, that he had on the 5th a partial Action with the French Fleet of 24 Sail of the Line, and that the two Fleets had been in Sight of each other ever ſince; which making it inexpedient to ſend off the Reinforcement immediately, under ſuch dangerous Circumſtances, I thought it right to call a Council of the General Officers on the Subject, who unanimouſly concurred with me in Opinion, that it was moſt adviſeable to wait until more favourable Accounts from Rear-Admiral Graves, or the Arrival of Admiral Digby, rendered the Sailing of the Reinforcement leſs hazardous; but our Fleet having arrived at the Hook on the 19th, a Council of War, compoſed of the Flag and General Officers, was aſſembled as ſoon as poſſible, the Minutes of which will inform your Lordſhip, that the Exertions of both Fleet and Army ſhall be made to form a Junction with the Squadron and Army in Virginia. Rear-Admiral Digby arrived off the Hook the 24th Inſtant.

Lieutenant-Colonel Conway, of His Majeſty's Foot Guards, after having ſerved the Campaign in Virginia, came here lately, upon all active Operations ceaſing in that Quarter; but, on hearing that the French were in the Cheſapeak, was deſirous, (though I had granted him Leave to go to Europe on his private Affairs) to return thither again, and wiſhed to attend me on this Expedition: However, judging that he would be more uſeful by going Home, from his Knowledge of the Situation in which which he had left Lord Cornwallis, I have prevailed upon him to be the Bearer of my Diſpatches to your Lordſhip; and I beg Leave to refer you to him.

Admiralty-Office, November 6, 1781.

Extract of a Letter from Rear Admiral Graves, Commander in Chief of His Majeſty's Ships and Veſſels in North America, to Mr. Stephens, dated on Board the London, at Sandy Hook, the 26th of September, 1781.

WHEN my laſt Diſpatch was made up, and ſent away by the Medea, I had not received the ſeveral Accounts from the Cheſapeak, which ſhew, that the French Fleet arrived off Cape Henry the ſame Day that Rear Admiral Sir Samuel Hood, with the Leeward Iſland Squadron, arrived off Sandy Hook. The Prudent, and ſeveral Frigates of the Weſt India Squadron, with Diſpatches for Rear-Admiral Sir Samuel Hood, joined the Fleet as it was returning to the Hook.

The Incloſed from Captain Bazely, of the Amphion, will ſhew the Effect of the Deſcent upon New London.

The laſt Letters from Captain Biggs, of the Amphitrite, in Boſton Bay, dated the 10th of September, mention his having taken, in Company with the General Monk, Four Prizes; and of his having, on the 4th, fallen in with Two French Ships off Cape Ann, one a Ship of the Line, the other a large Frigate, and was chaced by them. Captain Biggs likewiſe acquaints me, that the Magicienne French Frigate had been taken by the Chatham, Captain Douglas, on the 2d Inſtant, off Cape Ann, and carried away for Halifax. In the Action the French loſt 60 Men killed and 40 wounded; in the Chatham, 1 killed, 1 wounded.

Upon my Return to Sandy Hook with the Fleet, on the 20th, I was agreeably ſurprized to find that Three of the Pegaſus's Convoy of Victuallers had arrived at New York.

The Arrival of Rear-Admiral Digby, on the Evening of the 24th, in the Prince George, with the Canada and Lion, gave the greateſt Satisfaction.

The whole Fleet are as buſy as they can be: Every Exertion of mine, and of every other Officer in the Fleet, I may venture to affirm, will not be wanting.

Extract of Captain Bazeley's Letter, dated Amphion, off New London, September 8, 1781.

I HAVE the Satisfaction to inform you, that I arrived off this Port at Two A. M. on the 6th Inſtant, at which Time an unfortunate Change of Wind took Place directly out of the Harbour, which prevented my anchoring till Half paſt Six. I then diſpoſed of the Armed Veſſels and Tranſports agreeable to Brigadier-General Arnold's Wiſhes, in order to effect a Covering and Landing of the Troops, which was completed by Nine o'Clock. The Armed Veſſels and Boats I immediately afterwards ordered to be put in Preparation, under the Direction of Captain Shepherd of the Recovery, to proceed up the River, and act in Conjunction with the Army, at any Moment their Aſſiſtance was required, to aid in effecting the Deſtruction of the Port of New London, &c. agreeable to your Orders, which would have finally taken Place but for the Alarm-Guns, which were fired from the Forts at Day-Break; by this Means I was deprived of getting Hold of their Shipping at Anchor in the Stream, which, with moſt of thoſe at the Wharfs, proceeded ſome Miles up the River, ſo far as to prevent, by any poſſible Means, my taking or deſtroying of them: Thoſe remaining at the Wharfs were burned by the Army. The Ardour and determined Conduct ſhewn by the Troops in ſtorming of the Forts deſerve (in my Opinion) the higheſt Encomiums.

I am now proceeding, with all poſſible Diſpatch, with the Armed Veſſels and Tranſports, to New York: The Lurcher Armed Brig I have diſpatched with General Arnold's Aid de Camp and Lieutenant Bunce of the Amphion, who will preſent you this Letter, to whom I beg Leave to refer you for any further Particulars.

Copy of a Letter from Rear-Admiral Digby, to Mr. Stephens, dated Prince George, off Sandy Hook, September 25, 1781.

SIR,

YOU will receive herewith a Journal of the Proceedings of the Ships under my Command ſince I left England, by which, I hope their Lordſhips will be convinced, that there has not been a Moment's Loſs of Time in endeavouring to get here, though I find the Lively Brig, who ſailed after us, has been here ſome conſiderable Time.—I am now waiting with the Canada and Lyon to get over New-York Bar, but am afraid the Wind will not ſerve us To-day. However, as we are extremely healthy, and ſhall want very little, I make no Doubt we ſhall be ready as ſoon as great Part of the Fleet. The Perſeverance, who ſeparated from us ſome Days ago, I find is here.

I ſhould have deferred Writing till I had got in, but underſtand there is ſome Veſſel going immediately to England, and I am unwilling to miſs the Opportunity of acquainting their Lordſhips of my ſafe Arrival. I am, &c.

ROBERT DIGBY.
